

Chronology
	Nursery (Understanding the World)	Reception (Understanding the World)	Year 1	Year 2	Year 3	Year 4	Year 5	Year 6
Substantive knowledge & Skills	I can talk about events that have happened to me. I can sequence familiar events in my life. I can use simple words to describe when things happened. I can talk about some ways I have changed over time.	I can talk about events in my own life and the lives of people I know. I can sequence events from my own life. I can sequence pictures and objects to show an order from past to present. I can recognise that some events happened before others. I can use simple timelines to represent the passing of time. I can talk about changes that have happened within my family's lifetime.	I can sequence events and objects in chronological order. I can use a simple timeline to show when events happened. I can distinguish between events within and beyond my own living memory. I can use words and phrases relating to the passing of time. I can identify similarities and differences between different times.	I can sequence events and periods studied in chronological order. I can place events and people studied on a timeline. I can use dates and chronological vocabulary to describe when events happened. I can recognise that historical events can be separated by different lengths of time. I can use a timeline to make comparisons between periods and events I have studied.	I can place the periods I study on a timeline. I can sequence events and periods in chronological order. I can use dates to describe when historical events and periods occurred. I can understand and use BC and AD when describing historical periods and events. I can recognise that historical periods can overlap and vary greatly in length. I can relate the period I am studying to periods I have previously studied.	I can place the period I am studying accurately on a timeline in relation to periods previously studied. I can sequence significant events within a historical period. I can use dates and appropriate historical terms to describe when events happened. I can use BC and AD securely when describing chronology. I can use centuries to describe and locate historical periods. I can identify chronological connections between different periods I have studied.	I can place the periods I study accurately on a timeline alongside periods studied previously. I can sequence significant events within and across historical periods. I can use dates, centuries and historical period labels accurately. I can recognise that historical periods can overlap and that developments do not always happen at the same time in different places. I can identify connections, contrasts and changes across periods of British history. I can use chronological knowledge to explain how one period relates to another.	I can place the periods and civilisations I study accurately within a wider chronological framework. I can sequence significant events and developments within and across periods. I can use dates, centuries and historical terminology accurately when describing the past. I can make chronological connections between British, local and wider world history. I can identify periods of continuity and change across different times and places. I can use my chronological knowledge of previously studied periods to make comparisons and establish historical context. I can independently use timelines to support explanations about connections, contrasts and trends over time.
Vocabulary	Today, yesterday, before, after, then, now, when I was little, a long time ago	Past, present, future, today, yesterday, tomorrow, before, after, then, now, old, new, order, sequence, timeline, long ago	Chronology, chronological order, timeline, past, present, before, after, earlier, later, living memory, beyond living memory, date, year, decade, century	Chronological, chronology, timeline, date, period, past, present, before, after, earlier, later, decade, century, living memory, beyond living memory	BC, AD, chronology, chronological, timeline, date, period, ancient, prehistory, century, millennium, sequence	Century, chronology, chronological, timeline, BC, AD, period, era, ancient, sequence, duration, before, during, after	Chronology, chronological, century, era, period, sequence, duration, overlap, continuity, change, Anglo-Saxon, Viking, Tudor, medieval	Chronological framework, chronology, period, era, century, millennium, sequence, duration, overlap, continuity, change, connection, contrast, trend

Historical Knowledge
	Nursery (Understanding the World)	Reception (Understanding the World)	Year 1	Year 2	Year 3	Year 4	Year 5	Year 6
Substantive knowledge & Skills	I can talk about people who are important to me and my family. I can talk about some events from my own past. I can notice similarities and differences between things from the past and things I use today. I can talk about how I and familiar people have changed over time. I can listen to and talk about stories about the past.	I can talk about the lives of people around me and their roles in society. I can describe some similarities and differences between life in the past and life today. I can talk about significant people and events from the past that I encounter through stories, pictures, objects and experiences. I can recognise that people's lives and the world around them have changed over time. I can begin to explain why some people and events from the past are remembered.	I can describe some features of life in the periods and events I study. I can identify similarities and differences between ways of life at different times. I can describe how aspects of life have changed over time. I can explain why a person or event from the past is significant. I can identify simple reasons why events happened and what happened as a result. I can use what I have learned to make comparisons between the past and the present.	I can describe key features of the historical periods, people and events I study. I can compare aspects of life in different periods. I can identify ways in which people's lives have changed and ways in which they have remained similar. I can explain some reasons why significant events happened. I can describe some consequences of significant events and people's actions. I can explain why particular people, events or developments are historically significant.	I can describe the key features of the societies and periods I study. I can explain how aspects of people's lives changed within a historical period. I can identify examples of continuity as well as change. I can explain some causes and consequences of historical events and developments. I can compare aspects of different societies and periods, identifying similarities and differences. I can explain why particular people, events, developments or achievements are historically significant. I can make connections between local, British and wider world history.	I can describe and explain key features of the societies and periods I study. I can explain how and why aspects of societies changed over time. I can identify and explain examples of continuity and change. I can explain multiple causes and consequences of historical events and developments. I can compare societies and periods using relevant historical knowledge. I can explain the significance of particular people, events, ideas and achievements. I can make connections and contrasts between British history and wider world civilisations.	I can explain key features of the societies and periods I study using increasingly detailed historical knowledge. I can explain patterns of continuity and change within and across historical periods. I can explain how several causes can contribute to a historical event or development. I can explain short- and longer-term consequences of historical events and developments. I can compare beliefs, experiences and ways of life within and across historical periods. I can explain the historical significance and legacy of people, events and developments. I can make connections and contrasts between periods studied and use these to develop a broader understanding of British history.	I can use detailed historical knowledge to explain the key features of the societies and periods I study. I can analyse patterns of continuity and change within and across different periods and societies. I can explain how historical events and developments can have multiple and connected causes. I can explain and evaluate the consequences and longer-term impact of historical events and developments. I can compare experiences, beliefs and perspectives within and across different societies and periods. I can explain and justify the historical significance of people, events, developments and achievements. I can identify the legacy of historical societies and events and explain how aspects of the past continue to influence the present. I can make connections, contrasts and identify trends across local, British and wider world history.
Vocabulary	Past, present, old, new, change, same, different, family, remember	History, past, present, change, significant, event, person, society, same, different, remember	Significant, event, change, similarity, difference, cause, consequence, past, present, person, society	Cause, consequence, significance, significant, change, continuity, similarity, difference, society, period, event	Society, civilisation, continuity, change, cause, consequence, significance, achievement, settlement, agriculture, archaeology, prehistory	Civilisation, society, empire, invasion, conquest, resistance, democracy, settlement, continuity, change, cause, consequence, significance, legacy	Continuity, change, cause, consequence, significance, legacy, migration, settlement, invasion, monarchy, power, religion, conversion, society	Legacy , continuity, change, causation, consequence, significance, perspective, society, civilisation, power, inequality, conflict, migration, connection, contrast, trend

Historical Enquiry
	Nursery (Understanding the World)	Reception (Understanding the World)	Year 1	Year 2	Year 3	Year 4	Year 5	Year 6
Substantive knowledge & Skills	I can look closely at objects, pictures and other things from the past. I can ask simple questions about things from the past. I can use objects, pictures and stories to find out about the past. I can talk about what I notice. I can identify some similarities and differences between things from the past and things today.	I can ask questions about people, objects, pictures and events from the past. I can use objects, photographs, pictures, stories and other sources to find out about the past. I can describe what I notice in a source. I can use what I observe to suggest answers to simple questions about the past. I can compare two sources and identify similarities and differences. I can recognise that we can find out about the past in different ways.	I can ask questions about the past. I can use artefacts, photographs, pictures, written material and other sources to find out about the past. I can make simple observations and inferences from historical sources. I can select information from a source that helps me answer a question. I can compare sources and identify similarities and differences. I can recognise that the past can be represented in different ways.	I can ask historically relevant questions about people, events and changes in the past. I can use a range of sources to investigate questions about the past. I can select relevant evidence from sources to answer historical questions. I can compare different sources relating to the same person or event. I can recognise that different sources may tell us different things about the past. I can use evidence from more than one source to construct an account of the past.	I can devise and ask relevant historical questions about change, cause, consequence, similarity, difference and significance. I can identify primary and secondary sources. I can use a range of sources to gather evidence about the past. I can select relevant evidence to answer a historical question. I can make inferences from historical sources. I can compare accounts of the same person, event or period. I can recognise that our knowledge of the past is constructed from different sources. I can use evidence from different sources to construct a historical account.	I can independently devise historically valid questions to guide an enquiry. I can identify and distinguish between primary and secondary sources. I can select and combine relevant evidence from a range of sources. I can make supported inferences about the past from historical evidence. I can compare different accounts and interpretations of the past. I can explain why accounts of the past may differ. I can consider the usefulness of a source for answering a particular historical question. I can bring evidence from different sources together to construct a supported historical account.	I can devise and refine historical questions to guide an enquiry. I can select appropriate primary and secondary sources to investigate a historical question. I can make increasingly complex inferences from historical evidence. I can compare evidence from different sources and identify where it supports or contradicts other evidence. I can evaluate the usefulness of a source by considering its origin, purpose and content. I can recognise that historical accounts are interpretations constructed from evidence. I can explain why historians may reach different conclusions about the same past event or period. I can construct a historical argument or account using evidence from a range of sources. I can construct and communicate a historical argument, selecting relevant evidence to support my conclusions. I can acknowledge uncertainty where the available historical evidence does not allow a definite conclusion.	I can independently devise and refine historically valid questions to guide an enquiry. I can independently select and use a range of primary and secondary sources to investigate historical questions. I can make and justify inferences using evidence from different sources. I can compare, corroborate and challenge evidence from different sources. I can evaluate the usefulness of a source by considering its origin, purpose, content and historical context. I can recognise that sources and historical interpretations may reflect different perspectives. I can explain how and why interpretations of the past can differ or change when different evidence is considered. I can construct and communicate a historical argument, selecting relevant evidence to support my conclusions. I can acknowledge uncertainty where the available historical evidence does not allow a definite conclusion.
Vocabulary	Question, past, object, picture, story, notice, same, different	Source, question, evidence, artefact, photograph, object, past, observe, compare, similarity, difference	Source, evidence, artefact, photograph, document, question, observe, infer, information, representation, compare	Enquiry, source, evidence, artefact, account, representation, relevant, compare, infer, conclusion	Primary source, secondary source, evidence, enquiry, inference, account, interpretation, relevant, reliability, conclusion	Interpretation, primary source, secondary source, evidence, inference, account, usefulness, reliability, perspective, enquiry, conclusion	Historical enquiry, interpretation, evidence, primary source, secondary source, inference, origin, purpose, usefulness, reliability, perspective, corroborate, contradict, argument	Corroborate, interpretation, evidence, primary source, secondary source, inference, origin, purpose, context, usefulness, reliability, perspective, argument, conclusion, uncertainty